THE WILD WEST HAD BIG DAY OF IT IN CHEYENNE, WYOMING, TODAY WHEN COLONEL ROOSEVELT CAME.

(Herald Special.)
Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 27.—The west and east met here today and both stepped back a quarter of a century into the shadows of the ranches of Wyoming. Roosevelt, the cowboy, swung from the train from the east and walked down a long lane of yipping and yelling cowboys from Cheyenne, a typical cowboy town out for a time. Roosevelt brought the only trace of the effete east that was found here today. All of the "west" was here today, with a horse for every man. Cow-punchers had rode in from Colorado and Wyoming ranges, and sheep herders exchanged sympathies with the cowmen of Nebraska who have fallen before the march of the farmers. The colonel arrived at 9 o'clock, and was received by state, federal and city officials.
